Mexico is the original home of corn and the tortillas we make here are a link to the past that stretches back over 7,000 years.

The importance of corn makes it the basis of Mexican cuisine. There may be nothing better or more Mexican, than the taste of a hot, freshly-made tortilla.

At Mi Rancho in Oakland, organic corn is ground daily for our handmade tortillas—the same tortillas we use to make quesadillas, enchiladas, crispy tostada shells and our irresistible, very corny chips.
